CCO Views into 2024

January 16, 2024

The CCO View of the Year Ahead

As organizations confront increasing stakeholder expectations, pursue sustainability agendas, experiment with AI, navigate complex geopolitical developments and contend with rising employee activism, the strategic leadership of the chief communications officer (CCO) has never been more vital.

Page, the premiere global membership association for CCOs and other senior communications and public relations leaders, set out to understand the latest stakeholder risks and opportunities.

How We Listened

Page fielded a survey of its member CCOs between December 18, 2023 and January 15, 2024, garnering 38 responses across North America, Europe and the Middle East.

We also partnered with The Harris Poll to field a public opinion survey about confidence in business between December 1-12, 2023, garnering responses by 11, 612 individuals across 10 markets.

CCOs Words of Advice for CEOs in 2024

What would you say is one crucial piece of advice that CEOs need to hear from CCOs right now?

“It’s highly unlikely that your personal social/political views match those of a diverse workforce. Tread lightly making statements on behalf of an entire company.”

“Don’t react to trends, hyperbole and media narratives. Stay focused on building a strong business that creates long-term value. Everything else is noise.”

“Truth and authenticity are still paramount. Employees want to know that their employer cares and is not caring selectively. Have refreshed and strong values.”

“Embrace the world of hybrid work. There’s no going back and it offers clear advantages. Be intentional about your hybrid work strategy and stick to it.”

“Whatever you think is the appropriate amount of time spent communicating to and with employees, do more.”

“ESG backlash is real, but so is the need to make progress against the agenda in measured ways. It’s a balance.”

“It’s been a pressure-filled four years. Stress takes a toll. Make sure leaders are not burnt out.”
